A Word from the Chairman

Still a Year Full of Grace

Over the past year we experienced times of lack but also times of God's abundance; our ministries nearly came to a halt at times but at other times God led us to breakthroughs; we lost co-workers whom we miss dearly but thank God for precious people who recently joined us. Looking back, year 2013 is still a year full of grace!

Due to ministry development, we reorganised our administrative structure in mid-2013, created two leader-posts that now share the administrative and ministry burdens of Dr. Chan, CEDAR's Chief Executive, so that he may focus more on leading CEDAR in its development and further advocate integral mission.

We thank Father God for His providence over our ministries' developments, and we saw much encouraging progress in poverty relief works in regions of China, South Asia and Africa. In particular, our ministry in Yunnan, China, was affirmed and acknowledged by experts from Myanmar, the UK and China!

I would like to thank all the churches, organisations and Christians in Hong Kong who have supported and prayed for us over the past year. My particular thanks to the many Mainland and overseas partners for working with us with one heart and one mind so that our programmes and plans could be carried out. I also give thanks to God for the good and faithful service of Dr. Chan and all co-workers at CEDAR – I believe that many poor and disadvantaged groups have received care, many lives and communities are being transformed, and social justice is steadily being practised in different regions and districts!

Ministry Highlight

Focus Countries

► China – China churches develop social ministry

Since 2000, CEDAR has set up project points in China and established close partnerships with local churches in Hubei, Gansu, and Yunnan in serving local impoverished communities. In recent years, the social ministry arm of China churches has developed remarkably with the encouragement of the Chinese government. Let's have a glance at the social ministries of Yunnan churches as an example.

► Disaster response with local churches

On 7 September 2012, an earthquake measuring 5.7 on Richter scale shook the border between Yunnan Province's Yiliang County and Guizhou Province's Bijie Weining Autonomous County, affecting over 700,000 people. After receipt of grants from the HKSAR Government's Disaster Relief Fund Advisory Committee and donations from Hong Kong churches and Christians, CEDAR brought relief to the earthquake victims. In October, CEDAR team and Yunnan Christian Council sent a relief team to Yiliang to deliver food aid to 6,000 quake affected households in 15 villages, building up local churches' capacity on disaster management.

► See the achievements

Over the past six years CEDAR has actively reached out to different provinces to provide training to churches on Integral Mission and to help establish social ministry. In March 2013, experts from Myanmar, England and China went to Yunnan and carried out external assessments on the effectiveness of CEDAR's local programs. Not only were the programs given positive comments, the local churches' social care works were also being affirmed.

This is the community that the church in Gengma County, Yunnan, serves.

Jane (not her real name) is a young AIDS sufferer who, after being infected by her boyfriend, was driven out of her home. When the visiting team of the Baoshan church first found her, she was living alone and had blisters all over her body. The team took her to the hospital and visited her regularly with food and clean clothes. 'Why do you do all these things to me?' 'Because Jesus loves us, and we in turn practise this love.' The love of the church moved Jane deeply and she experienced God's love, forgave her boyfriend and started a life of chastity.

Dr. Wang Ru-xun of Chinese Association of STD/AIDS Prevention and Control, also an AIDS consultant who participated in the programme assessments, was one of the earliest to be involved in AIDS prevention in China. In the assessments he saw how the churches' face to face visits and care-giving could bring positive changes and encouraging results to AIDS affected families and communities. 'Your experiences are very important to China; please record them for sharing with the relevant departments.'

► Looking forward to cross-border ministry

Yunnan and Myanmar share a border and so young men from Myanmar often travel to border towns such as Mengding, Gengma, Zhenkang and Cangyuan to find work and women are married off to China; such busy population movements could lead to problems such as drug trafficking and abuse, and HIV/AIDS infections. Training given to churches along the border in the past years has laid a good foundation for the development of Sino-Burmese cross border ministry in the coming year.

As the social ministries of churches in places like Gengma are strengthening, CEDAR challenges them to collaborate with the Burmese churches to respond to social problems brought on by human trafficking such as youth labour, drug abuse and HIV/AIDS. Local churches are encouraged to provide a support network for the youth migrant workers enhancing their skills, and helping them to resist drugs and to prevent HIV/AIDS. These programmes are still being planned and discussed. We pray that God will continue to lead the churches in both countries so they may reach and minister to the marginalised and disadvantaged groups.

Representatives of China and Myanmar listed the social issues they were most concerned of.

► Myanmar – Post-war reconstruction opportunities

CEDAR has for the past decade worked with partners in Myanmar to serve children affected by wars and natural disasters. This year we witnessed how God made a new way for our partners to serve this group more fully, and CEDAR is also grateful for being a part of it.

► Rebuilding the land with war orphans

In April 2012, CEDAR's partner Fullmoon received the Burmese government's invitation to establish post-war community rehabilitation in Mon State. Since then, we have done some work among the Karen people of Mon State such as building schools and training people on water management and agroforestry development. Further, we gathered a group of Karen war orphans who grew up in and now graduated from Fullmoon to return to their home state to participate in reconstruction. Some of these orphans have become teachers and medical personnel so they now contribute by teaching and providing medical care.

After training, two former Fullmoon children now teach in a newly built school in Mon State

Over the past decade CEDAR and Fullmoon have worked together to minister to hundreds of children who due to war and conflict lost or were separated from their parents. It all started with Fullmoon's vision from God to train these children so that when they grow up they might mobilise community development in their home states. Now we witness it being realised and we are in awe of God's guidance and providence; we are also thankful that CEDAR and believers in Hong Kong are also part of this plan.

CEDAR's C.E. Dr. Chan Nim Chung and his wife joined Fullmoon children as they return to Mon State in December 2012

► Let the displaced regain hope

There are 430,000 internally displaced in Myanmar, over 115,000 due to conflicts in Kachin State alone. In June 2011 the 17 year ceasefire agreement between Kachin Independence Army (KIA) and the state army lapsed and since then over 30 temporary camps along the border have not ceased taking in those fleeing Burmese soldiers.

The Lisu pastor serving the displaced in the camp

A Lisu people group pastor serves in a camp with 5,000 internally displaced people. After taking a CEDAR-sponsored agricultural training he now teaches families how to grow vegetables, make fertilisers out of tree leaves and develop other natural fertilisers. Good farming operations help reduce pressure on the environment as well as bringing hope to the displaced families.

► Bangladesh – Looking forward to a closer walk together

► Focus Country for New Programmes

In 2013 CEDAR has been considering and weighing between programmes in India and Bangladesh in order to decide on one as our focus country. At the moment the nature of CEDAR's programmes in these countries are very similar, involving areas such as community development, disaster management, children and youth ministries. When comparing factors such as new working arrangements with our partners in these countries and the nations' respective developments, we found that Bangladesh has a greater lack in resource-development. CEDAR has decided that from July 2013 Bangladesh will be one of our focus countries in Asia, and we hope that through programme interventions we may better take on the issues mentioned above, giving more attention to poverty-related problems in Bangladesh such as gender inequality, human trafficking and children's rights. Meanwhile, CEDAR continues to work with our partners in India in tackling problems such as urban poverty and disadvantaged children.

Over 40% of adults in Bangladesh earn less than USD1.25 a day

► Transformation for slum community and residents

CEDAR's partner SATHI conducts an integrated community project in the slums of Dhaka, the capital of Bangladesh, which encourages dwellers to participate in community development. After several years, different resident groups are set up to organise and mobilise community development planning, gender equality promotion, improvement of community health and caring for underprivileged children.

Mukta is a member of the women's self-help group. In the past, she as a woman had little opportunity to express her views or get involved with issues such as community health, violence, alcoholism, drug abuse and child labour, but through SATHI's women's group and community health volunteer work, Mukta can now express her concerns on these issues and learn how to help families in need. 'I am now studying a paramedic course and hope to help more people.'

Programme intervention provides women with a platform to participate in community development affairs

► Disaster mitigation programmes enhance residents' disaster-combat capacity

The Kalapara district of Patuakhali province is situated in the southernmost part of Bangladesh and it is susceptible to nature's ferocity in tropical cyclones, tidal waves, floods and tornadoes. In 2010, CEDAR and partner World Concern Bangladesh launched a three-year disaster mitigation programme and set up committees in villages within the district, with members including the police, emergency evacuation teams and search and rescue teams.

On 26th May 2013, Kalapara was hit by Tropical Cyclone Mahasen but the residents' disaster prevention committee fulfilled its vital role by promptly giving warnings so that over 3,000 inhabitants evacuated safely and effectively. Both CEDAR and our partner were encouraged to see the fruit of the disaster prevention training; further, the committee and its volunteers' were praised by the local government for their work.

Widow Rokeya looks after her two children and her aged mother-in-law. Tropical Cyclone Mahasen destroyed their house. World Concern Bangladesh helped Rokeya's family rebuild their house.

► Other Focus Countries – Ministry Highlights: Ethiopia, Zimbabwe and Nepal

Ethiopia – Currently, CEDAR is sponsoring partner Addis Ababa Guenet Church (AAGC) to provide basic needs to over 200 impoverished children. In early 2013, eleven supporters flew to Ethiopia with CEDAR's staff to visit sponsored families. The desperate conditions of local families overwhelmed them, but they were even more impressed by how, despite their poverty, these Ethiopian families firmly confessed that 'Jesus is Lord'.

Zimbabwe – Khulani has five children. Her husband who works as a taxi driver earns barely enough to support the whole family. With the help of CEDAR’s partner Trinity, Khulani has obtained the official birth certificates for her children, giving them identity to attend the local public school and getting better social security. However, Khulani still needs to find school fees for her children. To meet the needs of disadvantaged families more comprehensively, Trinity is considering not only giving legal advice but also providing training to enhance people’s working capacity so that they can earn more income to improve their lives.

Nepal –Devi Maya (age 20) lives with her parents-in-law, husband and three children in a mountain village in the southern province of Makawanpur. When she was young, she yearned for school, but married at age 9 without any schooling. However, she can now take the life education course conducted by CEDAR’s partner Share & Care Nepal from which she learns to write, do mathematics and get information on the local government’s resources for women’s development so that she can work hopefully towards economic and social development.

Mobilising churches and believers

'From Church, Through Church' is the working principle of CEDAR, therefore the churches and believers are our chief partners, and it is one of CEDAR's focus tasks in Hong Kong to mobilise and coordinate with churches in their poverty relief ministries. Over the past year, through different ministries, activities and media, we helped churches and believers gain firsthand knowledge and understanding of poverty, and together we learned and practised caring for the poor and walking with them.

► Encounter – Meeting with poverty

CEDAR has published 'Integral Explore' which lists all the collaboration possibilities with churches, schools and other organisations, many being experiential education activities. Over the past year we were invited by secondary schools, university fellowships and churches to hold experiential poverty relief education activities; and through CEDAR Barefoot Walk, Extraordinary Banquet for the Poor and Rich, and community visits, we broadened many participants' understanding of poverty. This year we held external sharing 108 times, of which 51 times were with churches, 18 times with schools, 26 times with organisations and 11 times with seminaries (see Annex 2).

In February 2013, Dr. Holly MING from Breakthrough spoke on the parlous situation of Beijing migrant workers' children.

Further, to enhance mobilisation of believers, 'CEDAR Club' has now changed to a membership system and through regular monthly meetings participants learn about different aspects of poverty, reflect upon their faith and take action to care for the poor. We held 12 events this year on various topics: 4 sharing meetings, 5 visits to places and 3 group activities (see Annex 3). Currently the Club has about 150 members; the committee has started reviewing members' attendance over the past two years and their views on Club activities. We hope that more CEDAR Club members will be actively involved in the Club's works, bringing more believers to care about our society.

► Embrace – Remembering the poor

'What can be done?' is most frequently asked question after our sharing with churches. CEDAR regards 'remembering the poor' as an important element in our Christian life, and our faith is enacted in our daily lives. Therefore, by reviving the meaning of each different festival and important day we encourage churches and believers to live out a life of loving the poor.

'Carbon Fast Army' shares on Facebook

'Carbon Fast' is one of our festival campaigns, encouraging Christian communities to reflect on our relationship with God, ourselves, others, the communities and the environment through meditation and carbon fast actions during Lent. We are glad to see that over 50 persons joined us as 'Carbon Fast Army' this year, recording daily on Facebook their experiences on specific tasks (e.g. water conservation, walking instead of travelling by car and vegetarian diet etc.); some churches even invited the whole congregation to participate.

► Empower – Mobilising, sharing and spreading

‘Alleviating poverty with your share’ is the core ideal of CEDAR setting up a social network platform. CEDAR endeavours to bring Hong Kong Christians closer to far-away impoverished groups worldwide through different media activities and channels, with an aim to facilitate churches and believers’ participation in mobilising works that spread the message of care.

Starting from 2009, CEDAR has provided information and posts on Facebook, through ‘Like’ and ‘Share’ bringing news about the conditions and needs of the poor worldwide to members of the network and then members spread the messages through their own networks. The several rape cases which took place in India early this year alerted us to the violence, discrimination and unfair treatment suffered by South Asian women. CEDAR held a sharing meeting ‘Walking with Women in South Asia’ on 28 March 2013, and set up a Facebook group to link up Christians who care about the South Asian communities.

Nearly 250 guests attended the ‘LOVE & Dream’ – CEDAR’s Vision Sharing and Fundraising Dinner on 28/5/2013; over HK$750,000 was raised and the funds will be used wholly towards poverty relief in Africa, Asia and China

In 2013 we also held 'CEDAR in China' and the 'LOVE & Dream' – CEDAR's Vision Sharing and Fundraising Dinner where we talked about our works in places like China and Myanmar, gave thanks for God's grace upon the poor, and shared our vision of a 'poverty-free' world (see Annex 4).

Overseas exposure trip is an important mobilising platform. In January 2013, 11 Hong Kong Christians went on an exposure trip to Ethiopia which greatly impacted their lives, and afterwards they hosted a meeting sharing with over 90 people about the trip and their reflections, thereby spreading the message of caring about the poor.

Over 90 people attended the after-trip sharing of Exposure Trip to Ethiopia on 12 April.

The Way Forward

Although the concept of 'Integral Mission' is not new, there continues an obvious growing interest among churches and seminaries of Hong Kong to study and to practise it. However we need to discern carefully that this is not just a revival of social actions in response to needs, which could look like the pendulum swinging back to the other extreme.

The characteristics of the IM movement in the 21st century have a very strong focus on living out the mission of God, and for the global church to act in unity, through creative synergy among Christians from different sectors.

Apart from the various meetings and seminars that Cedar Fund has involved, we are beginning to strengthen the partnership with churches in 'Global Discipleship' programmes. Since Cedar Fund has a strong network with churches and organisations in many countries, we seek to build a three-way partnership: among Cedar Fund, an overseas ministry partner, and a Hong Kong church. Through this partnership, we will continue to develop in-depth knowledge and skills to work on hard issues amidst difficult social situations. This enables our churches to have first-hand contact and understanding of the Kingdom ministries, to broaden their perspectives of the work of God, and to grow in faith and community lives. Each 'Global Discipleship' programme will be designed jointly with the participating church. A 2-3 year commitment will be required. There lies a great deal of learning and partnership with the overseas churches and organisations. And I believe through God we will encounter creative and exciting experiences.
